Reconciliation in the frame

THE City of Canning has secured a beautiful piece of Aboriginal art as part of plans to rejuvenate its council building.

Sister Kate's Home Kids Aboriginal Corporation unveiled the artwork last week to Canning Mayor Patrick Hall.

He said it was a visual commitment to the City's support reconciliation.

The City is committed to building awareness of the City's rich Aboriginal heritage and strengthen its relationships with the local Whadjuk Noongar people, as well as ensuring the heritage of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples is conserved and celebrated in the area.
